The current health care environment is presenting multiple challenges for Kansas hospitals and other health care providers. One particular challenge that is straining the ability of Kansas hospitals to serve their community is related to the financial environment. The Kansas Hospital Association has partnered with one of the top ranked CPA firms in the nation, PYA, to perform an in-depth study to evaluate

- the financial health of Kansas hospitals,
- the financial strength of private payers, and
- Kansas hospitals' financial challenges as compared to hospitals in neighboring states.

PYA also did a deep dive analysis with three sample Kansas hospitals to determine the level of incremental funding required to sustainably provide care with a positive operating margin.

Jason Hardin, Martie Ross and Jane Jerzak from PYA will share the results of this recent study Addressing the Financial Challenges Facing Kansas Hospitals in a detailed presentation highlighting key findings from the study and answering member questions. In addition, KHA staff will share the association's next steps to use this new information to educate our members, stakeholders, policymakers and the public. We also will share a member toolkit to help Kansas hospitals have meaningful conversations in your community and with policymakers on the role private payers play in your hospital's financial success.
